A. NEW ISRAEL FUND (NIF) $3,660,000

www.nif.org

Building Civil Society/Social and Economic Justice

1. For general support of this organization, which advances democracy and equality in Israel through grantmaking, programs and public advocacy; and to reach out to donor communities in Israel and worldwide to build awareness and support for these efforts. ($450,000)
2. For its Core Grants Program, which provides institution building grants to social change organizations working to strengthen democracy and promote social and economic justice in Israel. NIF used Moriah funds to fulfill its commitment to the Association for Civil Rights in Israel (ACRI), NIF's flagship grantee and Israel's leading human and civil rights organization. ($125,000)
3. For Shatil, the action arm of the New Israel Fund. Shatil strengthens Israeli social-change organizations through a wide range of capacity-building services, revitalizes the field through leadership development and volunteer service programs, increases effectiveness by facilitating and coordinating coalitions and, where necessary and appropriate, mobilizes and leads the social-change sector in response to critical issues through proactive initiatives. ($150,000)
4. For NIF/Shatil's Social and Economic Justice Initiative, which works to reduce the gap between rich and poor and to enable Israel's marginalized populations to improve their living conditions. ($40,000)
5. For NIF/Shatil's Shared Society Program, which promotes a shared society that safeguards multiculturalism and tolerance, and where both Jewish and Palestinian Israelis share an equal sense of ownership and belonging that will be reflected in public life. Shatil employs consulting, training and proactive support for vital individual voices in the Palestinian community in Israel to augment the impact of their efforts toward sustainable change. ($50,000)
6. For its Public Advocacy program which works to strengthen the capacity of NIF to defend itself and its grantee organizations; to position NIF to have a greater impact on Israeli society, and to build a broad and organized constituency for democratic values. ($300,000)

7. For its New Strategic Directions Revenue program, which aims to build a significant new capacity to package, pursue and secure major gifts which can support the new initiatives defined in the strategic planning process. ($125,000)
8. Recommended for NIF to upgrade its development operations including a more robust development team, upgraded regional professional leadership, and a cutting-edge strategy for donor acquisitions. ($250,000)
9. For NIF and Shatil's National Budget Reform Project, which seeks to address the lack of accountability and transparency in social, economic and financial matters, especially in relation to the approval of the State budget. ($20,000)
10. For NIF's Digital Engagement and Mobilization project, which will launch a member led online organizing platform in Israel. ($75,000)
11. For its Media Project, to incubate a new media watchdog organization, that will engage in systematic and ongoing monitoring of both right-wing and mainstream media outlets; in order to promote a media environment in which progressive frames and positions become more visible, accessible, and influential. ($50,000)
12. For its SLAPP funding pool to be used to provide legal advice and assistance to organizations that have been the target of libel suits in response to statements that are critical of government policies or of NGOs promoting pro-settlement or anti-democratic policies. ($25,000)
13. Recommended for the Association for Civil Rights in Israel (ACRI) for the Coalition for Affordable Housing, which advocates for concrete policy changes for affordable housing in Israel, and is building upon grassroots interest by engaging new constituencies from the periphery, especially Arab citizens, as part of the Coalition's work ($35,000); and for general support. ($200,000)
14. For its new initiative, Reclaiming Security-Developing the Progressive Security Voice, which seeks to reframe and reclaim the conversation about Israel's national security, allowing for a progressive alternative approach to inform political and public conversations about foreign and domestic policy. The Moriah Fund will provide core grant fulfillment to the Council on Peace and Security and to Mitvim: a progressive foreign policy think tank. ($100,000)
15. Recommended for ANU (formerly Agenda) which strives to strengthen Israel's democracy, advance socio-economic issues, and diversify the public discourse, through public participation, media and digital activism. ($50,000)

16. Recommended for Bimkom: Planners for Planning Rights, for its efforts to bring about system-wide change in planning policies and practices affecting the lives of residents in Israel, Area C of the West Bank, and East Jerusalem. ($40,000)
17. Recommended for Breaking the Silence (BTS) for its project, Soldiers Speak Out-Testimony Collection Project, which collects, verifies, edits and publishes soldiers' testimonies about their service in the occupied Territories to raise awareness and educate Israelis about the nature and reality of the occupation. ($30,000)
